We have been using the garden riddles to break down the compost in the garden bed. Removing stones, bark and all the roots from last years vegetables.

The children found lots of cobwebs, in Forest School, this winter and so we decided to make our very own out of twine. They helped to count the number of sides and wrapped the twine around the sticks.

We've noticed the preschoolers have been pushing themselves to take more risks in Forest School which is improving their balance, proprioception and coordination.
